It is not worth it to build a 366 big block. You get the extra weight, and no more displacement. If it has the same stroke as a 454 (4.25", IIRC) then it must have a small bore. A small bore means less room for the heads to breathe, and that is not a good thing. FWIW, one of the magazines did a test of a 408 small block against a 408 big block.
